THE picture-loving public of Honolulu has been particularly fortunate this last year in that several artists of world-wide renown have visited the islands and given exhibitions of their paintings. Some have confined their work to the scenery while one or two have shown canvases depicting flowers.

Among those who have attracted the attention of the islanders were Lionel Walden, Knight of the Legion of Honor of France, known in Paris as the King of Bohemia; Miss Anna Klumpke, famous on both continents as a great painter, and the life-long friend and biographer of Rosa Bonheur; Mr. Theodore Worres, whose work became popular here as well as on the mainland; Miss Withrow, Mr. William Adam and Mrs. Pogson. Mrs. Pogson was a former resident of the island and her work did not make its initial bow here during her visit a few months ago. Her work was confined to flowers. Two of the artists who have left recently were Mr. George B. Torrey, the portrait painter, and Mr. Duncan Smith the mural artist. Nothing need be said here concerning these artists for their work is by this time well known in Honolulu. Mr. Torrey occupied the greater share of his time painting portraits of people prominent in Honolulu, while Mr. Smith depicted many beautiful Hawaiian scenes from a new viewpoint.

All of the painters who have visited Honolulu so far have been lionized by the society folk of the city; it is probable then that Bror Kronstrand, the Swedish portrait painter, will be feted in the same way provided he finds the time for such frivolities. Upon his arrival in the city he confessed a liking for the salt water and stated that he intended to spend a share of his time at Waikiki. Perhaps he will be on the look out for Honolulu's most beautiful woman. It was at the beach that Mr. Torrey found the young woman whom he considered the most beautiful type of Hawaiian.

When Bror Kronstrand arrived in San Francisco some time ago he was deluged by letters from women who considered themselves beautiful but so far no one here has ventured to suggest to the great artist that he paint her. No doubt this artist like all others who have been here will find our wave washed shores very different from any other places in the west. One of the recent portraits painted by the artist was that of Miss Lurline Matson, the daughter of Captain and Mrs. William Matson. Miss Matson is well known in Honolulu, having visited here a number of times. This portrait is said to be very fine. Mr. Kronstrand considered Miss Matson to be an expression of the strong, clean efficiency, poise and health of the typical American woman. A San Francisco paper says that he is popular as a painter of women for he seems to be able to portray the real character.

Kronstrand is known to be diplomatic, for when asked by a San Francisco paper if he considered Swedish women the most beautiful in the world he said: "Now maybe I know where the most beautiful women are to be found and maybe I don't. But if I do I have not told anybody and I am not going to tell anybody." For the women of each city he visits he has a new compliment. Now the Honolulu women are waiting to know just what he thinks of their beauty.

Miss Adelaide Pratt's Halloween party. Miss Adelaide Pratt was hostess at a most enjoyable Halloween party last evening at her home in Kaimuki. The house was decorated for the occasion with pumpkins, black cats and witches with a background formed of masses of ferns and pepper branches. The young people danced in the large sitting room and on the lanai which was lighted with Japanese lanterns. There were prizes offered for fancy and comical costumes. Miss Emily Cooke who was dressed as "Night," took the first prize for the handsomest lady's costume. She was given a large black cat. Miss Florence Campbell as a witch and Miss Rhode Ballentyne as a gipsy both were given small black cats. Miss Helen Church was given the prize for the most comical girl in costume. She received a stick pin. Among the young men Platt Cooke, Jr., as a clown, Arthur Winkley as a cook and Tom Church as a negro were given pumpkin and mannikin stick pins.

The young hostess was dressed as a pumpkin and the costume was carried out in every detail. She wore a hat that resembled half a pumpkin shell and her dress was ornamented with small pumpkins. Several of the friends who helped with the refreshments were dressed as ghosts. One gentleman, Mr. George Ashley, Jr., represented an owl and amused the young people greatly. During the first part of the evening Mrs. George Ashley, Jr., told fortunes as a witch. Some among those present were Miss Lillian McChesney, Miss Florence Ballou, Miss Florence Campbell, Miss Rhode Ballentyne, Miss Hazel Ridley, Miss Maud Ballentyne, Miss Emily Cooke, Miss Lucile Hoogs, Miss Helen Church, Miss India Wayson, Miss Eleanor Gartley, Miss Glenna McCracken, Miss Grace Johnston, Miss Pearl Kekumani, Miss Irene Aurns, Miss Aileen Dowsett, Miss Mildred Church, Miss Charlotte Ballou, Miss Dorothy Ashley, Miss Anna Ashley, Miss Bellaba Murray, Miss Frances Farrington, Miss Miriam Owendis, Dorothy Walden, Esme Damon, Miss Lucy Mutch, Miss Clemence Gilford, Miss Louise Glavin, Miss Margaret Stevens, Miss Ruth Farrington, Miss Frances Neville, Miss Winifred Brown, Miss Dorothy Cooke, Miss Helen Center, Mr. Platt Cooke, Jr., Mr. Jerry Smith, Mr. Arthur Winkley, Mr. William Diamond, Mr. Frederick Denison, Mr. Joseph Farrington, Mr. Charles Richardson, Mr. Tom Church and others.

The Misses McLean Give Supper to Bridal Party.

The Misses Carrie and Helen McLean of Honolulu, who are house guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Morlan in Manhattan place, entertained last night with a supper in compliment to Miss Rae Morlan and her fiancé, Mr. Stanley Visel, who are to be married tonight at the First Methodist church. Covers for all of the bridal party were laid at tables decorated with golden chrysanthemums and the favors and place cards were in harmony with the same hue.

The Misses McLean made a visit here a year ago, and there have been many friends to rejoice at their return to the city to act as bridesmaids for Miss Morlan.

The Morlan-Visel wedding tonight is to be an elaborately appointed affair. The bridal party is large and the young women chosen as attendants are all of personal charm and beauty and will be royally garbed. Los Angeles, Cal. Tribune, Oct. 15, 1912.

Miss Ethel Spaulding Entertained.

Miss Ethel Spaulding is guest of honor at a bridge party this afternoon at which Mrs. Schlaner of Fort Shafter is hostess. The prizes that will be awarded for the highest score are a card case and a dainty embroidered handkerchief. The invited guests are, Miss Ethel Spaulding, Miss McAfee, Mrs. Homer L. Preston, Mrs. J. M. Kennedy, Mrs. McAfee, Mrs. Fredendall Sr., Mrs. Loyd Fredendall, Mrs. Premann, Mrs. Jamieson, Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Kirby Smith, Mrs. Turner, Miss Betty Case, Mrs. Gerald Johnson, Mrs. H. B. Pratt.

Mrs. A. M. Nowell's Tea.

Mrs. A. M. Nowell of Manoa Valley, who left in the Ventura yesterday for a visit to the mainland, entertained at a farewell tea on Wednesday afternoon at her home in Manoa Valley. For her decorations, Mrs. Nowell chose huge yellow sunflowers. The guests included, Mrs. Frank Blake, Mrs. Boardman, Mrs. Edgar Wood, Mrs. Marston Campbell, Mrs. Alexis

Gignoux, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Tom Church, Mrs. Waldeyer, Mrs. Ernest Clark, Mrs. David Thrum, Miss Clark, Miss Folsom, Miss Bordan, Miss Max Campbell as a witch and Miss Rhode Ballentyne as a gipsy both were given small black cats. Miss Helen Church was given the prize for the most comical girl in costume. She received a stick pin. Among the young men Platt Cooke, Jr., as a clown, Arthur Winkley as a cook and Tom Church as a negro were given pumpkin and mannikin stick pins.

The church had been transformed into a bower of yellow and green. The pulpit was entirely hidden beneath a mass of ferns, palms and potted plants, while yellow chrysanthemums waved their heads from the greenery and immense bows of yellow tulle ribbons added an effective touch to the color scheme. The chandeliers were covered with ferns and tulle resembling hanging baskets of ferns with bows of golden tulle. The pew posts were topped with ferns and yellow chrysanthemums with bows of tulle at the base and the organ loft was a bower of ferns, yellow blossoms and tulle.

The wedding party entered to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," the bridegroom and his two brothers, Jack and Nelson Visel, meeting the bride at the altar, where she was given into his keeping by her father. First came the ushers, Clyde Whitney, Harold Janeway and Arthur Echman, followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Helen McLean, Miss Ruth Visel, Miss Elizabeth Helm and Miss Eloise Watson.

They were attired alike in gowns of corn colored charmeuse satin with under petticoat of white satin, covered with chintilly lace. The frocks were opened at the side showing the white satin and lace with a corded fold of the yellow charmeuse and at the top just below the knee was a lover's knot of tiny yellow chiffon rosebuds with delicate foliage. The gowns were Dutch necks with short sleeves and yokes and ruffles of chiffon and lace. The square trains fell from the shoulders. They wore yellow ostrich tips in their hair and carried two enormous yellow chrysanthemums with yellow tulle ribbons and long ends.

The maid of honor, Miss Carrie McLean, was becomingly attired in a gown of pale blue charmeuse satin with trimmings of chintilly lace and tulle. The pointed train fell from the shoulders with drapes of the lace with the tulle. She carried a silver basket filled with the palest pink rosebuds and a great bow of blue tulle on the handle. The bride was attired in a gown of heaviest white charmeuse satin made Empress Josephine fashion, with trimmings of duchess and rose point lace, which had adorned the wedding gown of her mother many years ago. The court train was trimmed down the entire left side with the lace and sprays of orange blossoms and foliage were caught lightly on the train near the hem. The gown was caught at the left side with a rose of soft chiffon and touches of tulle and pearls added artistic effect to the dainty gown. Her veil of tulle was held in place by a cap made of the duchess lace of her mother's wedding handkerchief and a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm shower of lilies of the valley and white orchids, and her only ornament was a diamond and pearl lavalere, the gift of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents for the members of the two families and the bridal party only. The bride's table held a centerpiece of a great silver basket filled with bride roses and lilies of the valley and ferns. This rested on a great mirror which was bordered with the lilies and ferns. claims Miss Klumpke as one of its members also. Professional speakers, women who speak on all occasions, have almost ceased to be entertaining at an average club meeting, but at the Press Association reception Miss Klumpke gave one of the most thoroughly delightful talks that San Francisco club women have ever heard. She smilingly announced that that was her second appearance as a public speaker and she begged the indulgence of her audience if she lapsed into a conversational tone. But not one word of her talk was lost, for it was far too interesting to be let pass without every effort to hear.

Miss Klumpke was the intimate friend and confidante of Rosa Bonheur, and at the request of that famous artist painted her portrait and wrote her biography. Miss Klumpke, when in Paris, makes her home in Rosa Bonheur's home, which was will to the California artist by Miss Bonheur at the time of the latter's death.

Miss Klumpke has left everything just as it was in the home, even to the unfinished picture of the "Nine Horses," which was standing on the studio easel. Interesting lights on the character and life of Rosa Bonheur were presented by Miss Klumpke in her talk. A number of Rosa Bonheur's paintings were pictured for the audience at the conclusion of Miss Klumpke's talk.

Not less appreciated were the half dozen or so pictures painted by Miss Klumpke, which were also shown.

San Francisco has a way of "welcoming home" notables with surprising frequency, but it is not often that there is so much delightful sincerity and such warmth of welcome as has been afforded to Miss Klumpke, who seemed to delight in being home quite as much as home does in having her.—San Francisco Examiner.
